How to Paint a Dead Man
SARAH HALL

On Loan, Available on 9 Jul 2015

A Booker-longlisted novel of art, absence, loss and passion, from Britain's most exciting contemporary writer.

How to Paint a Dead Man
Sarah Hall
Read by Philip Franks

Longlisted The Man Booker Prize 2009

'Beautifully realised ... Hall's prose is raw, surprising and often quite magnificent.' – The Sunday Telegraph

Italy in the early 1960s: A dying painter considers the sacrifices and losses that have made him an enigma, both to strangers and those closest to him. He begins his last life painting, using the same objects he has painted obsessively for his entire career – a small group of bottles.
